The Editorial Board evaluates manuscripts on their intellectual content without regard to authors' race, gender, sexual orientation, or citizenship and must not disclose any information about a submitted manuscript to anyone other than the corresponding author, reviewers, potential reviewers, and the publisher.

Reviews should be conducted objectively without personal criticism.

Reviewers should express their views clearly with supporting arguments, identify relevant published work that has not been cited by the authors, and report any similarity or overlap between the manuscript under consideration and other published papers to the editor's attention.
